Dear s 22

Thank you for sending that through. I've checked with the Accounts team and they will arrange for a payment up to the amount certified. Should the supplier contact you regarding the underpayment you will need to liaise with them directly regarding that.

Please let me know if you have any questions or if I can be of any further assistance.

Dear s 22

I am just following up regarding Mr Danby's message below. We have already received an invoice for processing from s 47G that relates to the design work for this advertisement. We will not be able to make payment to them for the design work until we receive an invoice for the placement of the advertising. To be able to pay for the design work it needs to be tied to either commercially printed material or e-material paid through the printing and communications work expense. As soon as we receive further information either in the form of a revised invoice or a link to where it has been used as e-material we will finalise this payment to s 47G

Please let me know if you have any questions or require any further information.

JEWISH NEWS

AUJS

New leadership line-up

SOPHIE DEUTSCH

THE Australasian Union of Jewish Students (AUJS) welcomed a new national executive for 2018 at its annual general meeting last week.

Comprising chairperson Saul Burston, vice-chairperson Gareth Milner, treasurer Daniel Kahan, political affairs director Noa Bloch, campaigns coordinator Sophia Kwier, and leadership and development officer Michael Garbuz, the incoming executive will "continue to innovate and organise projects that provide a high level of meaningful engagement to our members", commented Burston.

"Every Jewish tertiary student is interested in something different, whether it's a social aspect, political engagement or business events, within AUJS there really is something for everyone."

Outgoing national chairperson Isabella Polgar expressed her support for the new team, commenting, "I have full confidence that the incoming National Executive will create and enhance our innovative work and leave their legacy on our organisation for years to come."

Burston, who served as AUJS Victoria president in 2017, reflected, "I learnt that one leadership style doesn't fit all, an understanding I'll take with me through life. I trusted and empowered my executive to run the events and initiatives they wanted to run and supported the team in achieving their goals.

"In terms of Israel programs, we want to take advantage of the fact that Israel is known as 'the start-up nation' and do a deep-dive in the innovation and entrepreneurship space. This year we've introduced events that focus on these two areas with great success and thus we want to allow our members to engage with these topics on a bigger scale."

Milner commented that – among other things – he intends to "continue the good work of our predecessors in engaging Jewish students across Australia and New Zealand, tap into the digital market and enhance our social media strategy, engage with communities across Australia and New Zealand and celebrate Israel and AUJS's 70th birthdays."

In helping to tackle issues that Jewish students face, Milner emphasised that AUJS has been pivotal in addressing anti-Semitism and Holocaust denial prevalent on some campuses. "We will work with a number of different organisations both within and outside of the Jewish community to effectively combat those issues. We will also utilise the skills of our executive and members to best understand how to deal with these issues," he said.

The meeting also included the unanimous passing of motions in the areas of gender and marriage equality, inclusion of Sephardim and Mizrahim, recognition of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and Maoris, as well as mental health awareness.

BRING BACK LEIFER

Dassi meets with the PM

AUSTRALIAN Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull met with child sexual abuse survivor Dassi Erlich last Friday to discuss the stalled extradition proceedings against former Adass Israel principal Malka Leifer.

"We spent half an hour talking and I felt that he was very aware of the issues and he wanted to hear more about my story," Erlich told The AJN.

Leifer fled to Israel in 2008 when accusations that she had abused students at the school surfaced. Despite Erlich's campaign to bring her back to Australia to face justice, Leifer has remained there ever since. Last year, an Israeli judge ruled she is too mentally unstable to face extradition proceedings relating to 74 counts of alleged abuse, but she was not hospitalised and her movements are unrestricted.

"The Prime Minister was definitely empathetic and interested," Erlich said. "He wasn't just asking the right questions. He meant what he said."

Turnbull, along with several other Federal Members of Parliament, is travelling to Israel later this month for the Battle of Beersheba Centenary commemorations.

Erlich, who was accompanied to the meeting by her sister Elly Sapper and former Victorian premier Ted Baillieu, is hoping that Turnbull will raise Leifer's extradition with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and other high-level government officials. "I felt assured that he will take this up in Israel," she said. "I'm confident that he will back up his words with action."

A spokesperson for Turnbull said it was a constructive and positive meeting. "The government remains committed to securing Malka Leifer's extradition and will continue to raise Dassi's case with the Israeli government at all levels," the spokesperson said.

ACCESS INC

Best baristas on the block

YOU no longer need to travel around Melbourne to find the city's best coffee.

Having undertaken Access Inc's very own barista training course, Access Espresso, three young adults – Zalman Feiglin, Meir Belnick and Racheli Naparstek – are now officially trained baristas.

The program "offers young adults with disabilities the opportunity to undertake barista training and work experience on the Access Espresso coffee cart", Access Inc CEO Sharon Malecki said.

"We have gotten lots of great feedback about the coffees you made during the course and congratulate you on your passion and professionalism," Access Inc wrote on Facebook.

The program is supported by Gandel Philanthropy and Feiglin enjoyed his overall experience.

"I enjoyed learning how to make coffee and would love to get a job in a cafe," he said.

the youth of our community and want to find a way to harness this energy into building something memorable," program coordinator Andrea Lipshutz told The AJN.

The program will consist of several different workshops and guest speakers aiming to "build, create and empower an engaged and mindful youth community".

The summit will take place on October 15 at The White House in St Kilda

STILLBIRTH ISRAEL

Aussie family to fund vital service

AJN STAFF

WHEN personal tragedy struck Rebecca Dreyfus and her family, she was determined to create something positive out of a devastating experience.

Dreyfus is aiming to establish an Israeli stillbirth support organisation after her daughter Elysa delivered a stillborn baby girl in 2016.

About 1000 Israeli women give birth to a stillborn baby every year.

"Elysa and her partner needed specialist emotional support to deal with the grief and loss of their baby," Dreyfus said.

But the family soon realised there's no national stillbirth support organisation based in the Jewish State.

"The majority of Israeli medical professionals do not receive adequate training to respond in a sensitive manner to the profound grief and loss issues.

"Face to face support groups for parents do not operate on a regular basis and an after-hours telephone hotline service is non-existent.

"There is a need to increase the profile of this 'silent' social issue."

The support organisation the Dreyfus family will found in Israel will help individuals, families and groups if their baby dies – before, during or soon after birth.

Sydney's Rebecca Dreyfus is establishing support group Stillbirth Israel.

"It will provide a range of support services that offer hope for the future whilst providing opportunities to discuss, remember and acknowledge babies who have died," Dreyfus said.

"We will work in partnership with doctors, midwives, nurses, social workers and other professionals to advise on best practice to care for bereaved families.

"Stillbirth Israel will train volunteers to offer caring and non-judgemental peer support, and individual counselling sessions will also be available in conjunction with the Bar Ilan University Trauma Clinic."

Friends of Stillbirth Israel has been registered in Australia to provide seed capital for this new Israeli social service to aid long-term wellbeing for families after infant death.

Donations can be made at www.chuffed.org/project/starting-stillbirth-israel.

ACCESS INC

Best baristas on the block

YOU no longer need to travel around Melbourne to find the city's best coffee.

Having undertaken Access Inc's very own barista training course, Access Espresso, three young adults - Zalman Feiglin, Meir Beinick and Racheli Naparstek - are now officially trained baristas.

The program "offers young adults with disabilities the opportunity to undertake barista training and work experience on the Access Espresso coffee cart", Access Inc CEO Sharon Malecki said.

"We have gotten lots of great feedback about the coffees you made during the course and congratulate you on your passion and professionalism," Access Inc wrote on Facebook.

The program is supported by Gandel Philanthropy and Feiglin enjoyed his overall experience.

"I enjoyed learning how to make coffee and would love to get a job in a cafe," he said.

the youth of our community and want to find a way to harness this energy into building something memorable," program coordinator Andrea Lipshutz told The AJN.

The program will consist of several different workshops and guest speakers aiming to "build,

create and empower an engaged and mindful youth community"

The summit will take place on October 15 at The White House in St Kilda.

STILLBIRTH ISRAEL

Aussie family to fund vital service

AJN STAFF

WHEN personal tragedy struck Rebecca Dreyfus and her family, she was determined to create something positive out of a devastating experience.

Dreyfus is aiming to establish an Israeli stillbirth support organisation after her daughter Elysa delivered a stillborn baby girl in 2016.

About 1000 Israeli women give birth to a stillborn baby every year.

"Elysa and her partner needed specialist emotional support to deal with the grief and loss of their baby," Dreyfus said.

But the family soon realised there's no national stillbirth support organisation based in the Jewish State.

"The majority of Israeli medical professionals do not receive adequate training to respond in a sensitive manner to the profound grief and loss issues.

"Face to face support groups for parents do not operate on a regular basis and an after-hours telephone hotline service is non-existent.

"There is a need to increase the profile of this 'silent' social issue."

The support organisation the Dreyfus family will found in Israel will help individuals, families and groups if their baby dies - before, during or soon after birth.

Sydney's Rebecca Dreyfus is establishing support group Stillbirth Israel.

"It will provide a range of support services that offer hope for the future whilst providing opportunities to discuss, remember and acknowledge babies who have died," Dreyfus said.

"We will work in partnership with doctors, midwives, nurses, social workers and other professionals to advise on best practice to care for bereaved families.

"Stillbirth Israel will train volunteers to offer caring and non-judgemental peer support, and individual counselling sessions will also be available in conjunction with the Bar Ilan University Trauma Clinic."

Friends of Stillbirth Israel has been registered in Australia to provide seed capital for this new Israeli social service to aid long-term wellbeing for families after infant death.

Donations can be made at www.chuffed.org/project/starting-stillbirth-israel.

Dear s 22

Request for advice on claims for Printing and Communications [M&PS Ref 1175124]

You have sought advice as to whether the attached advertisement may be claimed as a printing and communications work expense. Your request has been considered by Ministerial and Parliamentary Services (M&PS), which advises as follows:

- The above items comply with the requirement that they may only be used for parliamentary or electorate purposes and must not be used for party business or commercial purposes.
- The above items must be commercially printed on paper or card weighing not more than 700 grams per square metre or on flat, magnetised material.
- As currently drafted, the above items may be claimed as a printing and communications work expense.

When using the Commonwealth Coat of Arms we refer you to Commonwealth Coat of Arms Information and Guidelines on placement and use.

Please note: you will need to complete the Printing and Communications Entitlement - Certification (Form 141) when submitting invoices for payment. Also, please ensure that you quote, where indicated, the above M&PS reference number.

- Where there are no changes to the assessed item, samples are NOT required when submitting invoices.
- If there have been changes made, please ensure that a sample of each item detailed on the invoice (either commercially printed item or e-material) is attached. Delays will occur in payment of the account if these samples are not provided.

More information on printing and communications is available on the Ministerial and Parliamentary Services website.

If you have any further queries, please contact the M&PS Help Desk.

Regards
